Excalibur is the Sports festival of NMIMS's Shobhaben Pratapbhai School of Pharmacy and Technology Management, NMIMS, Mumbai. With the mission to encourage budding sportspersons and enhance the sporting environment, Excalibur hosted a series of different sports tournaments and competitions on online mode.

PUBG is an online Battle Royale game was conducted We had 50 squads competing for the ultimate title of 'Winner Winner Chicken Dinner' with nationwide participation. The league matches had 45 squads compete for four days, and the top 20 made it to the final stage. The semi- finals and finals were streamed live on Youtube and had a combined viewership of 4,000+

Call of Duty Mobile, shooter video game, that saw one of the largest mobile game launches in history. this event was hosted with 32 squads participating from all over India for cash prizes. These 32 teams were divided into two groups of 16 each. The semi-finals and finals of this event were streamed live on Excalibur's official Youtube page with a combined viewership of 2,000+

Fantasy Premier League was organised for our football fanbase who couldn't have a football tournament this year. This competition is synchronous with the English Premier League (EPL) 20-21, where participants act as the team owner, general manager and head coach of a virtual football team. The players on one's fantasy team are awarded points based on their on-the-field statistical performances.

Sports Debate channels the inner sportsperson and brings out beautiful perceptions and points of view that one might not be aware of. With the spirit of Soft Words & Hard Arguments, we had a team of two students participate in winning class points. We sent the topics to the participants 24 hours before their matches which were to be conducted on Zoom. The final round of this event was streamed live on Excalibur's official Youtube page with a combined viewership of 400+.

Online Chess Tournament was conducted to win the Best Class Trophy. The matches were conducted on chess.com, and the participants received a detailed report of their match immediately after it ended. Students competed in 10 minutes- Rapid matches in a knockout format.

Sarla Anil Modi School of Economics (SAMSOE), NMIMS organised Online Sports Debate Event on 17th November, 2020. Participation in this event was open to all students. Students from all classes took part in Teams of 2 to compete for Class points. The event, titled "Sports: A Catalyst for Social Change," brought together students from various classes to discuss and debate the role of sports in society. The event was conducted via a popular video conferencing platform, allowing participants, judges, and viewers to join remotely. The debate featured eight teams, each consisting of two students. The event was divided into two main rounds: the preliminary round and the final round. The winners were awarded certificates of excellence, and all participants received certificates of participation. The online sports debate event was a resounding success, providing a platform for students to express their views on the intersection of sports and society.
